Description

When we have almost passed the first quarter of the 21st century, society is transforming at an exponential rate. It can be said that we live in the middle of a change of era. Digitization, artificial intelligence, climate change, demographic change, migratory movements and other profound changes are enormously conditioning and modifying the world we live in and will do so even more in the coming years. This transformation, the effects of which are not yet known, will plunge all of humanity into great uncertainties and completely transform the way we interact with each other. Undoubtedly, all these changes will have a profound global impact on the reproduction of the different identities of future generations. This being the case, what will be the foundation of Basque identity at the beginning of the 21st century? Can we assure the survival of our identity? What are our risks and strengths, as well as our threats and opportunities? What will be the foundations for the reproduction of the Basque identity in this century of transformation? What are our challenges as a country? This workshop aims to offer a space for debate among different people on all these issues. We will talk about identity, we will analyze examples from other countries, and we will talk about Basque identity in the Basque Country and in the world, as well as the challenges and ways to reproduce it in the 21st century.

Objectives

Reflect on the evolution of peoples' identities in the age of digitalisation.

Study the impact of the changes that have taken place over the XXI. century on the identity of peoples.

Talk to different people about the challenges of Basque identity.

Debate on the risks, strengths, threats and opportunities for the development of the Basque identity.

Reflection on the development of Basque identity outside the Basque Country.
